

San Francisco Chronicle

Napa gets a thrilling new cocktail bar, plus 9 other notable Wine Country developments

BY JESS LANDER | JUNE 6TH, 2022

Wine Country was positively buzzing in May – and not just because of the BottleRock Napa Valley music festival.

Several new bars opened, including one focused on cider and another on Champagne. A popular natural winery opened an Eataly-inspired shop in Healdsburg, and a beloved Napa taqueria upgraded from a food stall to a full-blown restaurant. There's also a variety of new wine experiences to check out with extras like bocce ball, sunset views and a milder mystery train ride.

Sunset sips launch in Sonoma

Sonoma's Sangiacomo Family Wines has introduced a new way to kick off a weekend in Wine Country. Every Friday, Sangiacomo will pour wines by the glass or bottle at sundown, allowing guests to soak up the sunset over vineyards and golden rolling hills. Table reservations are complimentary; light bites, cheese and charcuterie will be available for purchase.

21545 Broadway, Sonoma, sangiacomowines.com